

This degree program provides appropriate professional preparation for students working toward careers in general business or administration. The Business Administration degree seeks to develop a well-rounded student who has a broad skill set in business. In addition to the business core, students are required to take two additional courses in accounting, finance and MIS.

This approach ensures that the general business administration student also has skills in other major areas beyond introductory courses. It further gives students an opportunity to choose courses from a set that represent topics that a business student should know to function effectively. These are contemporary courses that define the current business environment, and they are constantly updated. Furthermore, depending on the evolution of the business environment, these courses could be replaced by courses that are considered more relevant in the new business environment.

The current set of courses a student can choose from are e-Commerce, International Business, Human Resource Management, Negotiation and Conflict Resolution, and Supply Chain Management. This program also offers excellent preparation for students intending to study at the advanced degree level.
